

- The execution proceeds in rounds that model time steps. In round r , each honest player i receives a message (a “record”) m from Z (that it attempts to “add” to its chain) and potentially receives incoming network messages (delivered by A). It may then perform any computation, broadcast a message to all other players (which will be delivered by the adversary; see below) and update its local state $chain_i$.