Note that a direct consequence of consistency is that the chain length of any two honest players can differ by at most T (except with negligible probability).